

MARINES TO RECEIVE
NEW VICTORY BUTTONS

Victory buttons, to be worn in the lapel of civilian clothes, are soon to be issued by the United States marine corps to all men who served in the corps from April 6, 1917, to Nov. 11, 1918, according to a statement issued at the marine corps recruiting office, Odd Fellows' building.

The button is of the standard design adopted for all branches of the service, bronze for all men except those wounded, who will receive silver buttons. These buttons are not to be confused with the marine corps discharge button, which were issued to all men of the marine corps and marine corps reserve upon honorable discharge from the service.

SIMS MAY BE IN
IN FORMER CASE

the same spirit, Admiral Sims opposed the laying of the mine barrage, which effectively closed the North sea to German submarines, and we had the hardest time convincing both the British admiralty and Admiral Sims that it should be done.

Offered British Honor.

Perhaps when congress broadens the investigation, it will find many other interesting things. For example, it will be found that the British government offered to make Admiral Sims a member of the British admiralty and, without declining the honor himself, asked the navy department's opinion, and urged acceptance.

The navy department promptly inquired if the British admiralty had offered to take in the naval representatives of France, Italy or Japan, and the answer came back that the British had been reserved as a distinguished mark for the United States alone, whereupon the reply that was quickly cabled back to Admiral Sims said in effect: "Certainly not."

Throughout the war there was a good deal of jealousy and rivalry between the naval commanders. It was so in the army, too. For instance, Gen. March, chief of staff in the United States, didn't get along any too well with Gen. Pershing, commander-in-chief on the other side. This often happens, when brief cablegrams at a distance, 2,000 miles separate officials from their office.

Was Given Post.

Logically, Capt. Gleaves should have gone to Europe just before the outbreak of the war, as America's naval part, if we entered the war, would fall, it was recognized, upon destroyers, our destroyer flotilla. But, because Sims had a reputation of "getting along with the British," he was given the post of executive at the Navy War college. It was reliably reported that he wanted to be made commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet. In truth, he did not apply for the job himself, but his big time to opposing the selection of Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson, who had been in command of naval operations off the coast of France, where the great bulk of American troops were safely landed during the most destructive activities of submarines.

But the navy department did not listen to Admiral Sims' objections to Admiral Wilson, whom he charged with being a poor subordinate. Moreover, there was considerable friction between Admiral Sims and Admiral Benson, chief of naval operations, who went to France with the American war mission.

Feeling Against Sims.

There is a good deal of bitter feeling in naval circles over Admiral Sims' activities and, far from being simply the usual attack on a civilian secretary of the navy by the professional naval men, this controversy runs deep into personalities.

For instance, resentment has never disappeared over the statement issued by Admiral Sims to the general effect that it was the British navy who got our troops to Europe safely. Admiral Gleaves felt compelled to issue a statement giving the exact figures and, while it is true that the British merchant marine, which had always been larger than ours, carried 48 per cent of our troops to Europe, the United States ships carried 46 per cent.

But as far as actually getting our troops safely to Europe, the impression left on the public mind by Admiral Sims' statement was that the British destroyers and naval vessels actually conveyed more American troops than did our own destroyers.

The official figures show that only 27,000 American troops went to Europe under British escort, while 1,720,360 went under the escort of the United States navy. The percentage is 81 per cent under American escort, 14 per cent under British escort, and three per cent under French escort.

Especially Delicate Job.

Nobody in the navy department is inclined to disregard the work of Admiral Sims abroad, for, while he was ashore all the time, and men like

MY POLICY:

My policy has always been to give a service equal to the best, and give it at a minimum charge. Many patients and small profits is my motto. It has been successful and I believe my easy payment plan will strike a popular chord. I want my patients to be able to get their dental work when they need it, and not have to wait until they can afford to pay cash. I believe more teeth are lost and appearances ruined by people postponing their work on account of not having the ready money than from any other one cause. I don't want you to feel that it is an imposition when you desire to take advantage of this easy payment plan. It is not a favor—it is plain business. I want you to remember that my 29 years' experience is back of my work. I can and do give work that is as good as the best. Come up.

Keep The System Clean
And You'll Be Healthy

Elimination helps to avoid colds, headaches and epidemics

ANYONE who has watched himself know there is nothing so important to health and comfort as regular daily elimination. Half of the minor illnesses of life are due to neglect of this. The five million men who were in our army know the importance of the doctor attached to this function.

By all means try to regulate yourself by intelligent diet and exercise, but when these fail you will need a laxative, one as near to nature in its action as skill can make it. In the opinion of many thousands of good Americans such a one is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. It acts promptly, gently and without griping and will with certainty regulate any tendency to constipation that you may have.

Take it when you feel drowsy, dizzy or bilious, when you feel a cold or a fever coming on, when there is an epidemic, when you have eaten anything about which you are in doubt. It is at such times that you need to be free of poisons and of fermenting foods. You can buy Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store. Thousands of families have it constantly in the house against emergencies.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, there being over 6 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefit have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 511 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

To Fight Film

DENTAL SCIENCE has proved that the great tooth wrecker is a slimy film. You can feel it with your tongue. Most tooth troubles are caused by it. It clings to the teeth, enters the crevices, hardens and stays. And teeth with discolor and decay where that film stays, however much you brush them. That is why millions of tooth brush users fail to save their teeth.

That film is what discolours—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Scientists have for years sought ways to combat that film, but the methods proved inadequate. Then one man, after extensive research, applied activated pepsin—a digestant—to the film. And many clinical tests seem to clearly prove that he solved this great film problem.

We ask you to see for yourself. This pepsin method is employed in Pepsodent, and we offer a 10-Day Tube. See what it does when you use it. See the results in ten days. It will show you a way to clean your teeth as you never have cleaned them before.

See How They Glisten

Analysis shows that the film is albuminous. Pepsin digests albumin. The object in Pepsodent is to dissolve the film, then to constantly combat it. But pepsin alone is inert. It must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. So pepsin long seemed forbidden. Now a harmless, activating method has been found. And that method, used in Pepsodent, makes efficient pepsin possible. Able authorities have proved Pepsodent by convincing clinical tests. It has been adopted, and is now endorsed, by leading dentists everywhere. It does what nothing else has done, and everyone should use it. We urge you to prove it yourself. Ask us for a 10-Day Tube. Look at your teeth and see what it does. See how they glisten. Do this for your sake and your children's sake. Learn the way—the only way—to cleaner, safer teeth.
